

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Sometimes you have to apologize!

Learning Outcome

Describe complicated or unusual events in the past through a wider range of B1 language in both work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can apologize and respond to apologies.
- I can talk about future action.
- I can exchange opinions.

Ask your partner:

- When was the last time that you apologized to someone?
- Why did you apologize?
- How was the apology received?

Let's Explore!

Vanessa doesn't know how a mother-in-law can be!

* Your "mother-in-law" is your husband's or your wife's mother.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Vanessa: Good evening. Do you have a reservation?
Customer: No. I'm sorry. I was supposed to call but I forgot.
Vanessa: You should call for reservations. They are taken daily after 1 p.m.
Customer: You're right, I must call next time. My husband is going to be very upset.
Vanessa: So, you'll need a table for two?
Customer: Three. My husband is bringing his mother.
Vanessa: I'll see what I can do. When are they arriving?
Customer: They'll be here in about 15 minutes.
Vanessa: Hmm ... I'm sorry, we're supposed to have a table on reserve for emergencies.
Customer: I must apologize for inconveniencing you.
Vanessa: Wait here. Sorry, the table is being used. There will be a wait.
Customer: You mustn't apologize. You're so helpful! I'm going to call Harold and tell him. They're not far. They take the subway. It runs every 15 minutes this time of night. Harold, can ... Yes, I know I was supposed to ... You must apologize to your mother for me. Yes, she'll say it's fine, but it won't be! Everything alright?
Vanessa: I don't suppose you know how a mother-in-law can be?
Customer: Not really.
Vanessa: I think most can be irritating.
Customer: I'm not sure about that.
Vanessa: Trust me, they're exhausting. Mine is always disappointed.
Customer: That can't be true.
Vanessa: Anyway, I am sure dinner will be wonderful.
Customer: That's what I was going to say.

Let's Practice!

What's Vanessa's opinion?

Instructions: Select all the correct answers.

1. Which groups of sentences show an exchange of opinion?

Customer: My husband is bringing his mother.

Vanessa: When are they arriving?

Customer: I think most can be irritating.

Vanessa: I'm not sure about that.

Customer: Trust me, they're exhausting. Mine is always disappointed.

Vanessa: That can't be true.

Customer: Anyway, I am sure dinner will be wonderful.

Vanessa: That's what I was going to say.

Customer: I'll see what I can do. When are they arriving?

Vanessa: They'll be here in about 15 minutes.

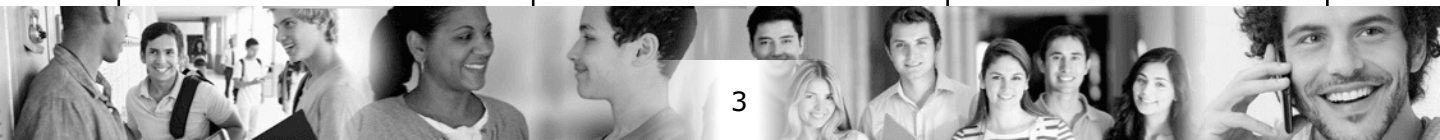

Let's Practice!

It's the customer's turn to apologize!

Instructions: Classify the sentences into the correct category.

1. I'm sorry, we're supposed to have a table on reserve for emergencies.
2. I must apologize for inconveniencing you.
3. You really should call for reservations.
4. The customer should apologize to her mother-in-law.
5. I was supposed to call but I forgot.
6. You're right, I must call next time.

Sentences that express a good idea:	Sentences that express obligation:	Sentences that show what was not expected:

Extension Activity

Tell someone about your future.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Think of the future in the next few years.
- Tell someone your intentions for the future (e.g. I am going to travel to Europe one day).
- Tell someone what plans you have made for the future (e.g. I am taking a course at university next year. I have planned it).
- Talk about any scheduled activities you have at a specific time this weekend (e.g. I work on Saturday afternoon).

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I talk about my intentions for the future.

☐ ☐

I talk about what my plans for the future.

☐ ☐

I write three sentences about my future.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to be upset (expression): to feel distress
e.g. My husband is going to be very upset.
- on reserve (expression): kept as an extra for an emergency
e.g. We're supposed to have a table on reserve.
- emergency (noun): a sudden unexpected event that created problems
e.g. We save a table for emergencies.
- to inconvenience (verb): to cause problems, delays, discomfort
e.g. I must apologize for inconveniencing you.
- irritating (adjective): annoying
e.g. I think most mother-in-laws can be irritating.

Learning Points

Apologizing

When things go wrong when you are at work, you may have to apologize or accept an apology.

You can use supposed to, should or must when you apologize, explain what did not happen or to accept an apology.

You use supposed to when you want to show you/someone did not do what was expected.

You use should to show the action would be a good idea.

You use must to show there is an obligation or necessity.

Example:	Meaning:
I'm sorry. I was supposed to call but I forgot.	I'm apologizing because I do not do the expected thing.
You really should call for reservations.	It would be a good idea to call next time.
You're right, I must call next time.	I have an obligation to call next time.
Yes, I know I was supposed to ...	I didn't do what was expected.
You must apologize to your mother for me.	You have an obligation to pass on the apology.

Examples:

- I'm sorry, we're supposed to have a table on reserve for emergencies.
- I must apologize for inconveniencing you.
- Sorry, the table is being used. There will be a wait.
- You mustn't apologize.

Learning Points

The Future

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future.

When you talk about a things that are not decided or when you make a decision at the moment of speaking for the future, you use the modal will.

When you ask about intentions, you use be going to.

When you talk about things that are arranged, on the agenda or booked for the future, you use the Present Continuous tense.

When you talk about schedules, you use the Present Simple tense for the future

Deciding Now

*So, you'll need a table for two?
They'll be here in about 15 minutes.
I'll see what I can do.*

Intentions

*My husband is going to be very upset.
I'm going to call Harold and tell him.*

A Plan/Things on the Agenda

*My husband is bringing his mother.
When are they arriving?*

Schedules

*Reservations are taken daily after 1 p.m.
It runs every 15 minutes this time of night.*

