Let's Start!

Writing Spot: Where is the manager? This is not acceptable!

Learning Outcome

Describe complicated or unusual events in the past through a wider range of B1 language in both work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can write a letter of complaint.
- I can write about food and drink at a restaurant.
- I can write about things I am supposed to do and things that are supposed to happen.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever had poor customer service at a restaurant? What happened?
- What should the business have done?

Let's Explore!

Anthony and his family thought they were in for a relaxed evening at local restaurant after a long, hard week. They were mistaken.

* "In for" means "going to have".

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Derek Stevens, Restaurant Manager at Cristoff's
45 Turin Ave.
Boston, Massachusetts

Dear Sir,

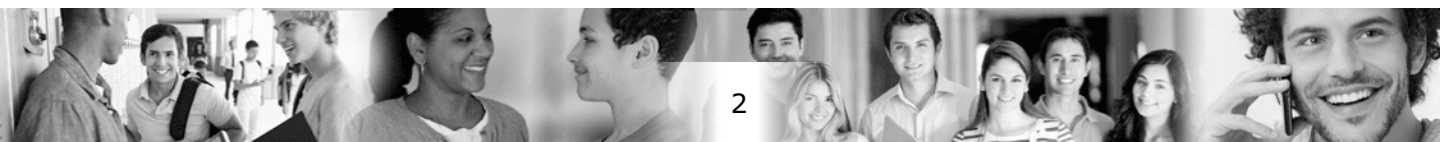

I am writing to tell you about a problem my family and I had at your restaurant the last time we were there. On Friday, I came to Cristoff's with my wife and our five-year-old daughter Jane. We will never come back or recommend your establishment. Furthermore, we are going to complete an online review so that others are wary of deceptive advertising techniques.

Cristoff's is supposed to be a family restaurant. In your advertisements, you say that children that eat at Cristoff's are served child-sized portions, and are provided with coloring books and crayons. You also tell customers that each child in the restaurant is given special attention. However, when my family ate at Christoff's on Friday, we were told that child-sized portions were not available on Friday nights.

My daughter was not given a coloring book or crayons. When she got restless and began to cry, we got complaints from the staff and patrons in the restaurant. I was even chastised for taking my daughter to a restaurant after 7PM! This meal was supposed to be a celebration of a long, hard week. Instead, we should have stayed home.

I think the behavior of the staff was shameful. I hope you feel terrible about it. I am not sure, sir, if any apology can make up for the unpleasant treatment we received. I am also planning to contact the newspaper that published the advertisements. I will be sure to spread the word to them and others about this atrocious scam.

Learning Points

Apologizing Using Should and Supposed to

You use should and supposed to to apologize for something you have done or to talk about obligations.

An obligation is something you should do or that other people expect you to do.

You use the verb "to be" in front of supposed to:

- verb "to be" + supposed to + verb

or

You can use the modal should to also show obligation, duty and correctness.

Examples:

- The waiter is supposed to take my order.
- I should have been more welcoming.
- What am I supposed to do now?
- The restaurant should apologize for their poor service.
- I was supposed to open the door for customers.

Learning Points

The Future with will, going to, the Present Continuous and the Present Simple

You can use four different tenses to talk about the future.

- When you talk about a things that are not decided or when you make a decision at the moment of speaking for the future, you use the modal will.
- When you ask about intentions, you use be going to.
- When you talk about things that are arranged, on the agenda or booked for the future, you use the Present Continuous tense.
- When you talk about schedules or timetables in the future, you use the Simple Present tense.

Verb Tense	Example
Future Tense (Will)	I will contact the newspaper that published your advertisement
Going to	I am going to write an online review of your restaurant.
Present Continuous Tense	We are planning to book a table at that new Italian restaurant later today.
Simple Present Tense	I recommend that you organize a high chair before we arrive at 6 p.m.
