Let's Start!

What would you like for dinner?

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about people's interests and backgrounds using a wider range of language.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about food and drink at a restaurant.
- I can ask for and provide information.
- I can make and respond to polite requests.

Ask your partner:

- What phrases do waiters usually use in restaurants where you live?
- How formal are you when you speak to them?

Let's Explore!

Ordering another bottle of wine seems extravagant!

* "Extravagant" means expensive.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Vanessa: Are you sure you wouldn't like to look at the daily specials?
Melinda: No thank you. This is Edmund's favorite meal!
Vanessa: How would you like your filets cooked?
Edmund: I'll have mine well done.
Melinda: I'm going to have mine rare. Are you serving sour cream with the potatoes?
Vanessa: I can arrange that.
Melinda: I'd also like the salad dressing on the side.
Vanessa: Of course. That's not a problem.
Edmund: We'll have another bottle of wine as well, please.
Melinda: Are you sure Edmund? It seems so extravagant!
Edmund: Nothing is too good for you Melinda!
Vanessa: Would you like the same wine, sir?
Edmund: No. We'll have this Merlot with the steak.
Vanessa: I'll see if we have a bottle of that left. Our wine delivery is tomorrow.
Melinda: If not another Merlot is fine.
Vanessa: We're serving crusty rolls this week. Can I offer you a basket?
Edmund: No, thanks, we're fine.
Melinda: Are you sure Edmund? A little bread is good with wine.
Edmund: Oh fine.
Vanessa: I'll be right back. Would you like to keep the menus or can I take them?
Melinda: I'm going to have a look at the desserts, so please leave one.
Edmund: You're having dessert tonight?
Melinda: I'm ordering one just in case you'd like a second.

Let's Practice!

Melinda's polite requests ...

Learning Points

Dealing With Customers

When you deal with customers in a restaurant, you or the customer may ask for information or provide information.

Generally when you ask for or provide information in a formal situation (customer to waiter), you use modals like can, could, will and would.

When you are speaking to someone you know well (customer to customer), you are less formal and ask and answer questions more directly.

More Formal	Less Formal
Waiter: Are you sure you wouldn't like to look at the specials? Customer: No thank you. I wouldn't.	Miranda: Don't you think that's extravagant, Edmund? Edmund: Nothing is too good for you, Miranda!
Waiter: How would you like your filets cooked? Customer: I'll have mine well done.	Miranda: Are you sure, Edmund? A little bread is good with wine. Edmund: Oh fine. Let's have rolls. (this response is slightly impolite)

Learning Points

Making Polite Requests and Responding to Polite Requests

When you make polite requests, you use modals like: can, could, will, and would.

When you respond to requests, you can use future tenses like will, going to, the Present Simple and the Present Continuous.

Make a Request	Respond to a Request
Can I get sour cream with the potatoes?	Yes, we're serving them with sour cream and chives. (Present Continuous)
I'd also like the salad dressing on the side.	That's not going to be a problem. (Going to)
We'll have this Merlot with the steak.	I'll see if we have a bottle of that left. (Will) Our wine delivery is tomorrow. (Present Simple)
Would you like to keep the menus or can I take them?	I'm going to have a look at the desserts, so please leave one. (Going to)
Can I offer you a basket?	No, thanks, we're not having rolls. (Present Continuous)
